Before Adam Hill joined the Zehner Davenport Industrial Group in 2015, he spent 12 years as an entrepreneur. He and a friend started a business in Orange County that supplied specialized paper products to the art and photography industries. As Vice President of Sales and Marketing, he helped grow the company into a market leader, when the company moved to a 300,000-square-foot building in Austin, Texas. But, as successful as he was, he and his wife Katherine decided to move back to California to be close to their extended family and lifelong friends.

As a career sales executive and entrepreneur, he learned the art of problem solving and dealing with the unexpected, skills that he now uses to help other entrepreneurs find and secure facilities that will help their businesses thrive. It's no surprise to anyone who knows him well that he has risen to top performer status at Voit in record time.

He especially enjoys working on complex requirements that require him to put his problem-solving skills to the test. His clients and his industry peers recognize his ability to quickly identify and resolve areas of difficulty. If anyone can make it look easy, it's Adam Hill.
